

Abstract

A data warehouse system for managing performance of organizations is provided. The data warehouse system comprises a data model for storing data

5 representing dimensions and measures applicable for multiple organizations, and a configuration unit for setting the placeholders such that the data model represents the particular organization. The data model has placeholders settable such that the data model represents a particular organization.